

HATCHER · STUBBS

ATTORNEYS AT LAW

PRACTICE AREA:

ADMINISTRATIVE AND MUNICIPAL LAW

Hatcher Stubbs' Administrative Law Group represents governmental and quasi-governmental entities, utilities, municipalities and corporations. We handle administrative hearings, including appearances before the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) and Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA), as well as judicial proceedings and state licensing board hearings. We provide counsel and expertise in municipal liability, municipal revenue bonds, education law, land use and zoning, as well as civil rights and constitutional law. Together with our employment litigators, we also provide corporate and institutional clients assistance creating policies tailored to the efficient resolution of labor and employment issues.

Hatcher Stubbs focuses a large part of its administrative and municipal law practice on the representation of educational institutions. Hatcher Stubbs attorneys are experienced in helping schools of all types successfully resolve issues involving teacher tenure and termination, student discipline, students' rights, special education, contract negotiation, policy development, administrative compliance, and personnel matters. Our attorneys also have the experience necessary to counsel schools on day-to-day issues arising in the education environment.
